About the Conference

The Western Nutrient Management Conference provides an opportunity for research, extension, industry, agricultural professionals and educators to explore, learn, and expand their horizons on current and emerging nutrient related issues in the western region. The conference is an unbiased forum to communicate science-based practices that are environmentally sound, sustainable, and profitable.

Why become a Sponsor?

Your support enables the WNMC organizers to continue their biennial tradition of bringing together top-tier researchers and experienced agronomists for presentations, while providing valuable networking opportunities during breaks and meals.
